

Terre Rubine

Barolo DOCG 2020

- 92 points, James Suckling
- 92 points, Owen Bargreen
- 92 points, International Wine Report

Grapes: 100% Nebbiolo

Tasting Notes: Red garnet color with orange nuances which become more accentuated as years go by; delicate, etheric, intense, full and lingering aromas; full, complex, dry and harmonious. Its austerity is linked to the presence of sweet and complex tannins.

Aging: Vinification in stainless steel temperature-controlled vats. Maturation for 6 months in stainless steel vats. Aged 24 months in large Slavonian oak barrels.

Food Pairings: Excellent with roast meats, game dishes, and mature cheeses.

Notes from the Winery: "Renowned the world over, this noble descendent of Nebbiolo wine has its roots in the Italian Unification. Many illustrious figures bore witness to its origins, like Marchesa Giulia Falletti di Barolo, Count Cavour and the first royalty from the House of Savoia. An austere, generous wine, quite ageable, which is considered a merit in Italian oenology. The municipalities in the Barolo production area are: La Morra, Monforte d'Alba, Serralunga d'Alba (with its exceptionally wellpreserved medieval military fortness), Castiglione Falletto (its symbol, a round medieval tower, is private property just like the manor), Novello, Grinzane Cavour, Verduno, Diano d'Alba, Cherasco and Roddi."

James Suckling: "Structured and broad, this succulent red shows notes of ripe red and dark fruit, spices, cedar and nutmeg. Medium-to full-bodied with compact yet well-integrated tannins and an even, lingering finish. Drink after 2026."

Owen Bargreen: "A really nice effort from this excellent vintage, the 2020 Terre Rubine Barolo delivers blacktruffle shavings and damp earthy notes on the palate that combine with wild blackberry and black raspberry. Refined tannins and a silky mouthfeel push through this delicious and already well-defined Barolo. Drink 2025-2033."
